ONE OF A KIND INTERACTIVE EXHIBIT OPEN TO THE PUBLIC

Located in downtown Harrisburg at the corner of 7th and Walnut Streets (across from The Forum), Harris Tower Railroad Museum will be open for visits on March 2, 2019. The Museum is a railroad control tower built by the Pennsylvania Railroad in 1930 to control all train movements through downtown Harrisburg, PA. Listed in the National Register of Historic Places, the tower once controlled the switches and signals that routed more than 100 passenger trains a day through the Central Pennsylvania area. The tower was used by the PRR, the Penn Central Railroad and Amtrak until closing in 1991. Upon closing, the Harrisburg Chapter of the National Railway Historical Society purchased the building and began the process of restoration. After an extensive restoration project spanning more than 15 years and thousands of dollars and volunteer hours, Harris Tower opened to the public as a living history, interpretive rail museum in 2008. The centerpiece of the exhibit is the tower's Interlocking Machine and Model Board, both of which are fully operable. Visitors to Harris Tower can actually operate the levers of the Interlocking Machine and see what happens by way of the lighted Model Board display, exactly as it was done decades ago. The Interlocking Machine and Model Board have been tied into a computer simulation system that is programmed with the actual Pennsylvania Railroad train schedules from the early 1940's. It is then up to the visitor to throw the proper levers to route the trains to their correct destinations. In this way, rather than simply viewing a static display, visitors to Harris Tower can actually operate the equipment and experience for themselves what it would have been like to work for the Pennsylvania Railroad in its heyday. To the best of our knowledge, there is no other exhibit like Harris Railroad Switch Tower anywhere in the world.

The tower lies adjacent to very active railroad lines, making Harris a perfect vantage point for youngsters and railroad buffs to view and photograph dozens of Norfolk Southern and Amtrak trains each day from a safe location, regardless of the weather. Admission is free, but donations are welcome. From the train show at the Union Hall, go downhill on Gibson Street and right on Rt. 230 (Cameron St.). Proceed underneath three overhead bridges until you get to Market St. Turn left on Market. Immediately after the next overhead bridge (railroad), turn right on Fifth, then right at the light on Walnut. Harris Tower is directly ahead; the parking lot is just past the Tower on the right. When you are ready to leave, turn right from the parking lot to exit. For a schedule of times when Harris is open during 2019 or for additional information or for group visits visit www.harristower.org or contact the Harrisburg Chapter of the NRHS at 717-232-6221 or by e-mail at HarrisTower@verizon.net.
